

Summer Seminar on Nationalism, Religion and Violence 2014!

Call for Applications

Charles University in Prague and International Hellenic University in Thessaloniki, supported by the LSEE invite applications to Second Summer Seminar on Nationalism, Religion and Violence in 2014, which will be organized between June 23 and July 4, 2014 at the Charles University in Prague. The language of communication during the summer seminar will be English.

The first Summer Seminar on Nationalism, Religion and Violence was organized in 2013, with great success. Visit the Nationalism, Religion and Violence in SE (Thessaloniki 2013) website and learn more about the program.

The Summer Seminar in Prague will focus in four blocks on Violence and Genocide, Nationalism and Religion, Institutions and Politics as well as Memory from an interdisciplinary perspective. The seminar can be taken by both undergraduate and (post)graduate students as well as activists. It is led by international researchers from universities with excellent reputation such as Oxford, NYU or LSE targeting students and graduates of Political Science, History, Anthropology, International Relations, International Law, Journalism and other related disciplines. Visits to memorial sites, research centers and international institutions based in Prague will also be included. Visit the Nationalism, Religion and Violence in Europe 2014 website for detailed information about the program.
